FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Richmond Division

CHRISTIAN ALICIMEUS,

Plaintiff,

v.

Civil Action No. 3:15CV740

IMMIGRATION CENTER OF AMERICA, LLC, et al.,

Defendants.

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Christian Alicimeus, a federal detainee proceeding pro se, filed this action in the Circuit Court for Prince Edward County, Virginia. On December 4, 2015, Immigration Center of America, LLC, Jeffrey Crawford, Matthew Jackson, Russell B. Harper, Ken Newsome, Warren Coleman, Mabel Logan (collectively, "ICA Defendants"), and Armor Correctional Health Services, Inc. ("Armor"), Wayne O'Brien, and Robert Dooley, MD (collectively, "Armor Defendants") removed the action to this Court.¹ The matter is before the Court on the ICA Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (ECF Nos. 7).² For the reasons that follow, the ICA Defendants' Motion to Dismiss will be granted. Alicimeus will be directed to show good cause why his claims against the Armor Defendants should not be dismissed.

¹ Alicimeus also named the Department of Homeland Security, but he does not appear to have properly served this entity.

² The Armor Defendants move to dismiss on the grounds that Alicimeus fails to state a claim of deliberate indifference under the Eighth Amendment.

I. STANDARD OF REVIEW

"A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) tests the sufficiency of a complaint; importantly, it does not resolve contests surrounding the facts, the merits of a claim, or the applicability of defenses." Republican Party of N.C. v. Martin, 980 F.2d 943, 952 (4th Cir. 1992) (citing 5A Charles A. Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1356 (1990)). In considering a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, a plaintiff's well-pleaded allegations are taken as true and the complaint is viewed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff. Mylan Labs., Inc. v. Matkari, 7 F.3d 1130, 1134 (4th Cir. 1993); see also Martin, 980 F.2d at 952. This principle applies only to factual allegations, however, and "a court considering a motion to dismiss can choose to begin by identifying pleadings that, because they are no more than conclusions, are not entitled to the assumption of truth." Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 679 (2009).

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure "require[] only 'a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief,' in order to 'give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.'" Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007)

(second alteration in original) (quoting Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 47 (1957)). Plaintiffs cannot satisfy this standard with complaints containing only "labels and conclusions" or a "formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action." Id. (citations omitted). Instead, a plaintiff must allege facts sufficient "to raise a right to relief above the speculative level," id. (citation omitted), stating a claim that is "plausible on its face," rather than merely "conceivable." Id. at 570. "A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged." Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (citing Bell Atl. Corp., 550 U.S. at 556). Therefore, in order for a claim or complaint to survive dismissal for failure to state a claim, the plaintiff must "allege facts sufficient to state all the elements of [his or] her claim." Bass v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., 324 F.3d 761, 765 (4th Cir. 2003) (citing Dickson v. Microsoft Corp., 309 F.3d 193, 213 (4th Cir. 2002); Iodice v. United States, 289 F.3d 270, 281 (4th Cir. 2002)). Lastly, while the Court liberally construes pro se complaints, Gordon v. Leeke, 574 F.2d 1147, 1151 (4th Cir. 1978), it does not act as the inmate's advocate, sua sponte developing statutory and constitutional claims the inmate failed to clearly raise on the face of his complaint. See Brock v. Carroll, 107 F.3d 241, 243

(4th Cir. 1997) (Luttig, J., concurring); Beaudett v. City of Hampton, 775 F.2d 1274, 1278 (4th Cir. 1985).

II. SUMMARY OF PERTINENT ALLEGATIONS AND CLAIMS

Alicimeus invokes the Court's jurisdiction under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. (Compl. 6, ECF No. 1-2.)³ "Immigration Center of America [("ICA")] . . . operates a detention center for illegal immigrants in Farmville, Virginia, under a contract with the Border and Transportation Security division of the Department of Homeland Security, United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement." (Id. ¶ 22.) The remaining defendants are investors/owners of ICA, employees of ICA, a privately contracted medical company, Armor, and its employees. (Id. ¶¶ 11-18.)

On July 20, 2015, Alicimeus was placed "in the custody of Immigration Center of America - Farmville by defendant, Department of Homeland Security, for intake and processing for immigration proceedings." (Compl. ¶ 24.) During his incarceration at ICA Farmville, Alicimeus asserts that Defendants violated his constitutional rights by, inter alia, failing to provide adequate toilet paper, (Compl. ¶ 26) and failing to provide him with adequate medical care (id. ¶¶ 27-

III. NO CLAIM UNDER 42 U.S.C. § 1983 OR BIVENS⁴

Alicimeus seeks to sue the ICA Defendants and the Armor Defendants under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. (Compl. 6.) That statute provides, in pertinent part:

Every person who, under color of any statute . . . of any State . . . subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law

42 U.S.C. § 1983. Alicimeus fails to provide any factual allegations that plausibly suggest the ICA Defendants acted under color of state law. At best, Alicimeus alleges the ICA Defendants were acting under some gloss of federal authority by virtue of their relationship with the Department of Homeland Security. See Chatman v. Hernandez, 805 F.2d 453, 455 (1st Cir. 1986) (citation omitted) (observing that "Section 1983 applies to persons acting 'under color of state law' and not to persons acting pursuant to federal law"). Accordingly, Alicimeus fails to state a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against the ICA Defendants.

⁴ Bivens v. Six Unknown Named Agents of Fed. Bureau of Narcotics, 403 U.S. 388 (1971).

Furthermore, Alicimeus fails to state a claim under Bivens against the ICA Defendants. In Bivens, the Supreme Court held only that 'violation of [the Fourth Amendment] by a federal agent acting under color of his authority gives rise to a cause of action for damages,' despite the absence of any federal statute creating liability. 403 U.S. at 389. Carlson v. Green, 446 U.S. 14 (1980), extended Bivens to recognize an implied damages action against federal prison officials for violation of the Eighth Amendment.

Holly v. Scott, 434 F.3d 287, 289 (4th Cir. 2006) (alteration in original) (parallel citations omitted). Nevertheless, "[t]he Bivens cause of action is not amenable to casual extension. Indeed, quite the opposite is true." Id.⁵ The Supreme Court has made it clear that "[t]he purpose of Bivens is to deter individual federal officers from committing constitutional violations." Corr. Servs. Corp. v. Malesko, 534 U.S. 61, 70 (2001) (emphasis added). Therefore, the Fourth Circuit has expressed significant doubt as to whether it would ever be appropriate to expand Bivens to cover private individuals or entities. Holly, 434 F.3d at 291.

⁵ Justice Scalia observed that "Bivens is a relic of the heady days in which this Court assumed common-law powers to create causes of action—decreeing them to be 'implied' by the mere existence of a statutory or constitutional prohibition." Corr. Servs. Corp. v. Malesko, 534 U.S. 61, 75 (2001) (Scalia, J., concurring).

In this regard, the Supreme Court has emphasized the critical importance of the defendant's employment status in assessing the propriety of Bivens liability. See Minneeci v. Pollard, 132 S. Ct. 617, 626 (2012). "The alleged actions of these defendants were not of a sufficiently federal character to create constitutional liability. Defendants are not federal officials, federal employees, or even independent contractors in the service of the federal government. Instead, they are employed by [or invested in, ICA], a private corporation." Holly, 434 F.3d at 292. The courts have refused to extend Bivens liability to individuals, like the ICA Defendants, who were employed by a private corporation that was paid to act as the plaintiff's jailor. Id.; see Minneeci, 132 S. Ct. at 626 (refusing to extend Bivens liability to "privately employed personnel working at a privately operated federal prison").⁶

Furthermore, "the threat of suit against an individual's employer [is] not the kind of deterrence contemplated by Bivens." Corr. Servs. Corp., 534 U.S. at 70 (refusing to extend Bivens liability to a corporate defendant). Therefore,

⁶ In considering whether to extend Bivens liability the courts also consider whether "state tort law remedies provide roughly similar incentives for potential defendants" to respect an individual's constitutional rights. Minneeci, 132 S. Ct. at 625. Alicimeus fails to direct the Court to anything that suggests Virginia tort law fails to provide such adequate incentives. See Lewis v. Beach, No. 3:10CV731, 2012 WL 3069409, at *4 n.10 (E.D. Va. July 27, 2012).

"Plaintiff has no right of action under Bivens against a private entity, such as [ICA], even if the private entity engages in alleged constitutional violations while acting under color of federal law." James v. ServiceSource, Inc., 555 F. Supp. 2d 628, 639 (E.D. Va. 2008) (citing Corr. Servs. Corp., 534 U.S. at 70). Accordingly, as Alicimeus has failed to identify an appropriate procedural vehicle for advancing his constitutional claims against the ICA Defendants, his constitutional claims against them must be dismissed.

IV. CONCLUSION

The ICA Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (ECF No. 7) will be granted. Alicimeus's claims against the ICA Defendants will be dismissed. Alicimeus will be directed, within fourteen (14) days of date of entry hereof, to show good cause why his claims against the Armor Defendants should not be dismissed for failure to identify an appropriate procedural vehicle for advancing his constitutional claims.

The Clerk is directed to send a copy of the Memorandum Opinion to Alicimeus and counsel of record.

It is so ORDERED.
